

Letter from Gertrude McCurdy Hubbard to Alexander Graham Bell, undated, with transcript

4 Cambridge, Tuesday. My dear Mr. Bell:

I had half-finished my note to you yesterday when a letter came from Mabel which quite embarrassed me, and left me undecided how to act. I wanted very much to have seen you today, and Mr. Hubbard went to Boston hoping to find you. Can you come up tomorrow morning? I can hardly say to you in writing what I would like to.

Very sincerely yours, Gertrude M. Hubbard
